My love doth so approve him,
That even his stubbornness, his checks and frowns,
(Pr'ythee unpin me) have grace and favour in them. Shakespeare.
Unpin that spangled breast-plate which you wear,
That th' eyes of busy fools may be stop'd there. Dryden.
Who is the honest man?
He that doth still and strongly good pursue,
To God, his neighbour, and himself most true:
Whom neither force, nor fawning can Unpin, or wrench from giving all their due. Herbert.
UNPINNED. adj. Not marked with cypher holes.
Gabriel's pumps were all unpinned i' th' heel. Shakespeare.
UNPITIED. adj. Not compassionated; not regarded with sympathetic sorrow.
Richard yet lives; but at hand, at hand
Infuses his piteous and unpitied end. Shakespeare's Rich. III.
Rich in the world's opinion, and men's praise,
And full in all we could desire, but days:
He that is warn'd of this, and shall forbear
To vent a sigh for him, or shed a tear;
May he live long scorn'd, and unpitied fall,
And want a mourner at his funeral. Bp. Corbet.
But he whose words and fortunes disagree,
Absurd, unpitied, grows a publick jest.
He that does not secure himself of a flock of reputation in his ad-his greatness, shall most certainly fall unpitied in his adversity. L'Estrange.
As the greatest curse that I can give,
Unpitied be depos'd, and after live. Dryden's Aurengzeib.

UNP

As some sad turtle his lost love deplores;
Thus, far from Delia, to the winds I mourn
Alike unheard, unplac'd, and forlorn.
Passion unplac'd, and successeless love,
Plant daggers in my heart, and aggravate
My other griefs. Addison's Cato.
UNPLACED. adv. Unmercifully; without mercy.
He beat him most pitifully.
— Nay, that he did not; he beat him most unplac'dly. Shakespeare.

but yet we don't live unpleasantly in primitive simplicity and good humour. Pope.
UNPLEASANTNESS. n. f. Want of qualities to give delight.
As for unpleasantness of sound, if it doth happen the good of men's souls doth deceive our ears, that we note it not, or arm them with patience to endure it. Hooker.
Many people cannot at all endure the air of London, not only for its unpleasantness, but for the suffocations which it causes. Giam's Bills of Mortality.
All men are willing to stink out of such company; the fibre for the hazards, and the jovial for the unpleasantness of it. Government of the Tongue.
UNPLEASANT. adj. Not pleased; not delighted.
Me rather had, my heart might feel your love,
Than my unpleas'd eye feel your courtesy. Shakespeare.
Condemn'd to live with subjects ever mute,
A salvage prince, unpleas'd, though absolute. Dryden.
UNPLEASING. adj. Offensive; disgusting; giving no delight.
Set to dress this garden:
How darest thy tongue found this unpleasing news? Shakespeare.
Hence the many mistakes, which have made learning so unpleasing and so unsuccessful. Milton.
If all those great painters, who have left us such fair platforms, had rigorously observed it in their figures, they had made things more regularly true, but withal very unpleasing.
Howe'er unpleasing be the news you bring,
I name not you, but your imperious king. Dryden.
UNPLIANT. adj. Not easily bent; not conforming to the will.
The chisel hath more glory than the pencil; that being so hard an instrument, and working upon so unpliant stuff, can yet leave strokes of so gentle appearance. Wotton.
UNPLIANT. adj. Not plowed.
Good found land, that hath lain long unplowed. Mortimer.
To UNPLUM. adj. To strip of plumes; to degrade.
